Businesses that answer to the triple bottom line – people, planet and profits – are finding favour among many consumers. Who Gives A Crap may not seem like a terribly aspirational name for a business, even one that sells toilet paper, but it shows how the new force of consumer consciousness is turning traditional business practice on its head. Put simply, more and more people – from millennials to baby boomers – want to spend their cash on products from companies that care.

~~People, planet and profit: the power of social enterprise ...~~

In a truly sustainable business, "people, planet, profit" is not a triple bottom line – it is a math equation and it looks like this: People + Planet = Profit. The profit is an inherent result of providing value to the people, value to the planet. In a sustainable business, profit should never exceed value, nor should it be less.
